Drawing upon the epic of Troy, as well as other traditions and story-cycles, this panel—led by the Honorable Jane Harman, president of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington D.C., and former member of the U.S. House Committee on Homeland Security—will address the historical, contemporary, and future role of women in national defense. Topics under discussion will include: women in the uniformed military; women in the defense establishment, including legislators; the required consent of women for mobilization and warfare; women and the defense economy; and women as heads of state in time of war.
